A 21-leaf clover discovered on June 3 by Iwate prefecture farmer Shigeo Obara has shattered the Guinness world record for most leaves on a clover stem (Trifolium repens L.). The Last Leaf. In a little district west of Washington Square the streets have run crazy and broken themselves into small strips called "places." The count comes out to 21 stitches on each row, so if you aren't getting that, you must be missing increases or decreases somewhere. Try this: before starting a row, count the number of stitches in the instructions—if it doesn't come out to 21, then go back and reread the instructions. This Homelite Electric Leaf Blower/Sweeper offers two speeds: 120 MPH for quiet operation and 150 MPH for power mode. The instant-start, 7 amp motor is compact and quiet, producing only 65 dB on the lower speed, while the lightweight ergonomic design makes it easy to operate and helps limit user fatigue., One Leaf, Two Leaves, Count With Me.
